WARKAH UNTUK JUNJUNGAN

Nurulwidad Celli, bekas pegawai kerajaan, meliti rumah adat yang on the verge of extinction in the Perak region. The efforts of the Perak State Government and the community in saving and preserving the Warkah (house for the Junjun) have gained nationwide recognition.

The Warkah is a traditional structure that serves as a place for the Junjun, a prominent figure in the community, to gather and make decisions. It is a symbol of unity and leadership in the community. The Warkah was under threat due to urbanization and modernization, leading to the loss of cultural heritage.

Nurulwidad Celli has been instrumental in raising awareness about the Warkah and advocating for its preservation. She has worked closely with the Perak State Government to ensure the Warkah is protected and maintained.

Recent initiatives include the restoration of the Warkah, the creation of a museum, and the establishment of a community center to promote cultural exchange and education. The community has also been encouraged to participate in the maintenance and preservation of the Warkah.

The efforts of Nurulwidad Celli and the Perak State Government have been recognized by various organizations, further highlighting the importance of preserving cultural heritage and traditional structures.

In conclusion, the Warkah is not just a building; it is a representation of the community's history and values. The efforts of Nurulwidad Celli and the Perak State Government have ensured the preservation of this cultural treasure for future generations.
