When it comes to selecting a postgraduate programme, University Malaya is one of the most preferred choices for its cutting-edge postgraduate programmes with an aim to mould students into leaders and thinkers of tomorrow. The first and premier university in Malaysia is dedicated towards providing its students with an atmosphere that is extremely conducive to their personal and social growth. At this top ranking university, students can avail themselves to a multitude of options for postgraduate programmes from Arts and Humanities to Science and Technology, encompassing both fundamental and applied areas. It offers 150 postgraduate programmes from 12 faculties, five institutes, two academies and three centres, all housed within a campus in the capital city of Kuala Lumpur.

The Institute of Graduate Studies is the Graduate Centre for University Malaya. Since its inception in 1979, it has under the Dean's office, the Admissions, Examination, and Finance Section, Student Development & Scholarship Unit, and Thesis & Viva Unit. Currently University of Malaya has over 11,000 postgraduate students, of which 3,500 are foreign students from over 80 countries.

PROGRAMMES OF STUDY
UM awards master's and doctoral degrees in a large range of programmes and confers joint or split-site Ph.D. degrees with foreign institutions like the Universities of Sydney, Melbourne, Nottingham, Imperial College London, and the Consortium of Presidents of Universities in France.

Many of UM's postgraduate programmes carry international accreditation from a variety of prestigious bodies including the U.K. Association of MBAs, the Royal College of Surgeons and the Institute of Physics and Engineering in Medicine.

There are three modes of study for postgraduate programmes – coursework-based, research-based, and mixed-mode which combine elements of both. The most popular postgraduate courses are the MBA, education and clinical programmes. Rather than categorise programmes as part-time or full-time, the university allows students to vary their course loads to suit their time availability. Master's programmes can be completed in two to eight semesters, Ph.D. programmes in four to 12 semesters. UM's fees are amongst the lowest in the region because they are highly subsidised by the government. The university also offers financial aid, especially for research students.

At this top ranking university, students can avail themselves to a multitude of options for postgraduate programmes from Arts and Humanities to Science and Technology, encompassing both fundamental and applied areas. It offers 150 postgraduate programmes from 12 faculties, five institutes, two academies and three centres, all housed within a campus in the capital city of Kuala Lumpur.

The Institute of Graduate Studies is the Graduate Centre for University Malaya. Since its inception in 1979, it has under the Dean's office, the Admissions, Examination, and Finance Section, Student Development & Scholarship Unit, and Thesis & Viva Unit. Currently University of Malaya has over 11,000 postgraduate students, of which 3,500 are foreign students from over 80 countries.

PROGRAMMES OF STUDY
UM awards master's and doctoral degrees in a large range of programmes and confers joint or split-site Ph.D. degrees with foreign institutions like the Universities of Sydney, Melbourne, Nottingham, Imperial College London, and the Consortium of Presidents of Universities in France.

Many of UM's postgraduate programmes carry international accreditation from a variety of prestigious bodies including the U.K. Association of MBAs, the Royal College of Surgeons and the Institute of Physics and Engineering in Medicine.

There are three modes of study for postgraduate programmes – coursework-based, research-based, and mixed-mode which combine elements of both. The most

The Institute of Graduate Studies is the Graduate Centre for University Malaya. Since its inception in 1979, it has under the Dean's office, the Admissions, Examination, and Finance Section, Student Development & Scholarship Unit, and Thesis & Viva Unit. Currently University of Malaya has over 11,000 postgraduate students, of which 3,500 are foreign students from over 80 countries.

PROGRAMMES OF STUDY
UM awards master's and doctoral degrees in a large range of programmes and confers joint or split-site Ph.D. degrees with foreign institutions like the Universities of Sydney, Melbourne, Nottingham, Imperial College London, and the Consortium of Presidents of Universities in France.

Many of UM's postgraduate programmes carry international accreditation from a variety of prestigious bodies including the U.K. Association of MBAs, the Royal College of Surgeons and the Institute of Physics and Engineering in Medicine.

There are three modes of study for postgraduate programmes – coursework-based, research-based, and mixed-mode which combine elements of both. The most