(From April 9, 2012) The President of the Chinese Medical Association in Malaysia, Chee Chye, has announced that the Chinese Medical Association in Malaysia (CMA) has a deficit of RM700,000.

The CMA has set up a new hospital in the central region of Malaysia. The hospital has been in operation for nearly 70 years. The chairman of the CMA, Lee Choon, has stated that the deficit is due to the high cost of running the hospital.

He also mentioned that the hospital is facing difficulties in attracting patients due to the high cost of treatment.

The shortage of funds is a major concern for the hospital, and the CMA is seeking to establish a new clinic in the central region to address the issue.

The CMA is working to increase its readership and attract more patients to the hospital.
