Penang Should Respect Humanities Education

Mawar said, "He has written many books and articles over the years on various aspects of humanities, education, and the arts." He added that his goal was to promote the study of humanities in Penang.

He emphasized the importance of humanities education in the development of a society that values cultural diversity and the arts. He highlighted the role of educators in instilling a love for the humanities in students from an early age.

Mawar also called for greater support from the government and the private sector to further develop humanities education in Penang. He pointed out that many students were losing interest in humanities subjects due to a lack of resources and support.

He urged educators to use creative and engaging teaching methods to make the study of humanities more appealing to students. He believed that a well-rounded education included not only sciences but also humanities, arts, and religion.

Mawar concluded by saying that the promotion of humanities education was crucial for creating a more tolerant and understanding society.
